WE NOMINATE

Julian Parks Boyd, historian, editor and librarian, who this summer with the publication of Volume 15 in The Papers of Thomas Jefferson has rounded out his fifteenth successive year as the driving-force behind one of the staggering undertakings in the history of American scholarship. Eventually this first complete edition of the writings of the Nation's third president, a $1,000,000 venture launched in 1943 under the combined sponsorship of The New York Times, Princeton University and the University Press, will number 52 volumes, including some 60,000 documents which run to well over 23,000,000 words.

Headquartered in the depths of the Firestone Memorial Library, the structure he helped plan, build and dedicate as "the very antithesis of assembly-line education," the 54-year old Boyd radiates a blend of enthusiasm and dedication that bewilders a layman. With a long row of published volumes arranged on a shelf near his desk, he looks forward to assembling another 25 volumes of correspondence and state papers arranged in chronological order, an additional 10 volumes of Jefferson's writings on special topics (from mathematics to wine-making) and a 1,500-page index for what has been described as a "storehouse of man's knowledge of an era."

Boyd, South Carolina-born and a member of the last graduating class to receive a Trinity College degree before that once-struggling North Carolina college became Duke University, stirs thoughts of the saying that every good portrait-painter in doing another's portrait paints his own. With interests ranging from gardening to hand-setting type, Boyd shares many of Jefferson's own tastes. He has strong convictions about politics and architecture, is interested in all facets of education and is the author of more than a dozen published works.

Called to Princeton in 1940, Boyd played a vital role in promoting and blueprinting the six-story Firestone pyramid, displaying his educational statesmanship as founding chairman of the nationwide Cooperative Committee on Library Building Plans and as an originator of the "Farmington Plan". The latter, sustained by the country's research libraries, seeks to bring to America at least one copy of every scholarly work published anywhere in the world and avoids costly, senseless duplication in the total library economy by assigning areas of specialization to American libraries.

Boyd, formerly director of the New York State Historical Association and from 1934 until 1940 librarian and editor of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, transferred from the library to a professorship in the University's Department of History in 1952 in recognition of the demands generated by the Jefferson Papers, which has since become the model for a number of similar but less exhausting historical publications. A founder of the Society of American Archivists, he has been chairman of the N.J. Committee for the Conservation of Historical Resources as well as chairman of the Advisory Council of the State Museum.

For shining new light on American history and on the man who "swore eternal hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind"; for distinctive achievements—as a scholar, teacher and librarian-scholar; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

PUZZLE IN WALLPAPER

Putting the Squares Together.
An attempt to obtain 800 to 1,000 signatures—many of them from individuals scattered throughout the nation—is being made to memory of Charlie Caldwell, Princeton football coach from 1944 until his death last November. If the time-consuming effort proves successful, says Mrs. Charles W. Caldwell, Jr., of Lake Road will be quite content. Should the attempt to locate names of individuals who signed the duplication of effort, it will mean that their original signatures on wallpaper in one room of the Caldwell home can be intact and undamaged without damage to Mrs. Caldwell's new residence at 20 College Road West. Not until the attempt is made to remove the paper, and rehang it in its new location, will it be known whether the project can be completed successfully.

In the event that it cannot, Mrs. Caldwell has purchased some 200 pieces of wallpaper, divided them into 96 squares each (a total of 1,920 pieces) and is well under way in her nation-wide quest for signatures. She autographs the area her husband requested during post-game gatherings. Many have been mailed; other cases, friends are circulating them for signatures in areas where Princeton alumni are thickly populated.

Principal questions involve ability to remove the wallpaper without damage and rehang it—all without having the ink run while Princeton is undergoing a typically humid summer. The task is scheduled for completion before August ends.

In the intriguing story, the long arm of coincidence has left its own mark on Bob L. Squires, 42, Mrs. Caldwell's husband. The paper is the name of Rich W. "Dick" Kazmaier. A two-time

In the Pink?

If Borough Council reacts favorably at its August 12 meeting to a legal petition before the Pinkerton Detective Agency, the plenary retail consumption license belonging to Walter C. Tash, 44 Jefferson Road, will become the property of Robert D. McCarthy, 44 Moran Place. Mr. McCarthy has confirmed that he also is seeking Council's permission to transfer the burn license from its present premises—Coke Tavern, 4 Spring Street—to 252 Nassau Street, former headquarters of Nassau Appliance, Inc.

Presuming endorsement, the new cocktail lounge will be called "The Pinkerton," and, if of greatest interest, it will be located next door to the brand-new Ivy Inn, recently opened tavern at 254 Nassau Street, previously the property of McCarthy, former co-owner of the Wine & Game Shop and currently a salesman for The New Britain Company, as well as owner of The Igloo Ice house, said extensive alterations will be made before he, his wife and John Scherer of Princeton, Pa., a business friend, take over in a month or two.

No disclosure of the license application process between the McCarthy group and Mr. and Mrs. Tash was announced. The valuable property reportedly was "on the block" for many months.

All-American Kaz was the signature of many fine social players. Charlie Caldwell developed—and his number was 42. It has, incidentally, never been reassigned by Princeton to another player.

GUARD CUT DOUBTED

"Not a Very Good Time" Elimination of Princeton's unit of the New Jersey National Guard—a report given considerable state newspaper space during the past 10 days—will probably not develop, the office of Major General James F. Cantwell predicted hopefully this Tuesday. "In view of the present economic situation, it is not a very good time to reduce armed forces, including civilian units," a spokesman for New Jersey said of state standards.

First stories concerning the disbanding of Princeton's 74-member contingent grew out of an Army announcement direct to the Pentagon to the effect that it had to reduce the State's military manpower. The federal program would cut the New Jersey Guard by 3,200 men, including the 33rd Tank Battalion, of which Princeton Company E is a part—and by $2,900,000 annually in military pay (plus other millions worth of equipment authorized for troops).

Contacted by TOWN TOPICS, Gen. Cantwell's spokesman said that States throughout the nation are ordered to send new troops to Washington and are holding out for a minimum of 400,000 Guardsmen, current strength of the National Guard. He said that the staff's earliest observation was that an important concern is the immediate loss to the people of New Jersey of the State's small armed forces, which are essential to their safety in times of emergency.

HUNTING AND SAFETY

Are They Compatible? Reflecting the basic reality that Princeton Township can hardly be classified as a dominantly rural area, nearly 100 residents of the municipality and outlying areas flocked Tuesday evening to a public meeting to discuss the adequacy of existing laws on hunting and the use of firearms. The Township Committee wished to hear all sides before deciding what course to take on a question that had been raised more often than all others during the past few months.

Township residents, particularly in certain newly-built-up areas, consider that irresponsible hunters are a menace to families, animals and property. Representatives of sportsmen's groups reported that the vast part of the trouble originated in the out-of-town gunners and that, to ban all hunting in every part of the Township, would be to deny citizens a basic liberty.

Joseph H. New, Township clerk, reported near the start of the two-hour-plus meeting that he had received 17 letters on this subject and that the writers favored the prohibition of hunting, except by owners on their own property or the use of firearms on approved ranges.

Borough Outlawed Hunting in 1857. Most proponents of a new ordinance justified its need on the grounds that the Township is no longer a rural area. The municipality is "now small for unrestricted hunting."

Mayor Charles H. Hurford, who conducted the proceedings, noted that indeed the population of the township increased by 51 percent between 1850 and 1870 and is expected to double by 1975. Eventually, the Township will be forced to follow the example of the borough which "unanimously passed an ordinance prohibiting the firing of canons, rifles, pistols and other firearms or the shooting of birds."

Among those advocating immediate action to replace the existing ordinance, which requires the hunter to obtain permission of the property owner, was O. G. Kling, Quaker Bridge Road resident, who asserted that hunting, especially in hunting an anachronism, but it is also a public danger in the Township today in view of the large number of children disclosed. One Ridgeview Road resident expressed the opinion that children in the country during hunting season are more restricted than if they lived in town. Considerable opposition was urged upon the Committee, lest it act too hastily, by a number of sportsmen and farmers who for different seasons warned that a ban on hunting shooting would be both unfair and unrealistic. William Leisner, a farmer on Cherry Valley Road, was among those who pointed out that deer left unchecked are a menace to certain crops and to newly-planted trees.

Zones for Hunting Proposed. By degrees of reasoning, it was clear to most observers that a complete prohibition of all hunting and use of firearms might not be a realistic solution. Plans were offered to provide areas for the protection of families and property rights while still allowing for more rigidly-controlled gunning.

FROM WASHINGTON TO LINCOLN: The long-familiar three-cent postage stamp bearing a likeness of George Washington will go the way of the two-cent stamp this Friday when regular four-cent stamps bearing a likeness of Abraham Lincoln take over. Henry Mills Alice, president of the Philatelic Society of Princeton, emphasizes the transition to new postal rates in America. Other new prices effective August 1: domestic air mail, 7 cents; post cards, 3 cents; air mail postal cards, 4 cents; international air mail, 8 cents; "Priority" post cards, 4 cents (surface) and 8 cents (air transportation) and stamped envelopes, 4 cents and 7 cents. Attention, Deer Crossing

Princeton Township has a large herd of deer that, during the hunting season, would multiply to such an extent "as to make driving after dusk unsafe," asserted as a result of the question whether all hunting and use of firearms should be banned in the Township was offered at a public meeting Tuesday night by Leith Burns, Mercer County conservation officer.

Mr. Burns supported the view that stricter enforcement of the present Township hunting ordinance was preferable to categorically prohibiting all hunting. The town warden, who is 18 deputies to assist him, declared firmly that property owners themselves must cooperate fully by accepting the responsibility of reporting all trespassing hunters to his office or to police.

"New Jersey is a heavily urbanized state," he pointed out, "and we have the second largest hunting records in the country." Mr. Burns, who resides on Quaker Bridge Road, believed that irresponsible sportsmen cannot be made to suffer for a handful of irresponsible hunters who can be eliminated through stricter discipline.

Certain parts of the Township are still undeveloped and form perfect settings for deer to hunt. It was suggested by George Cook of Lawrenceville Road that such areas might be zoned for hunting while the sport might be banned in other more densely populated districts where lives have been endangered.

The general consensus was that, before any action is taken by the Committee, property owners themselves should act to enforce the present regulations. They should take down the license numbers of all trespassing hunters and report them to the State Game Warden or the Sheriff's Office of Mercer County. Under State law, trespassers are subject to fines of $25 to $50.

A property owner is empowered to arrest without warrant any unauthorized hunter whom he finds on his land, it was pointed out. But an unarmed land owner cannot be protected by a group of shotgun-toting hunters likely to avail himself of this right, one owner immediately asked.

Bertram L. Gulick, Jr., of Princeton-Kingston Road suggested that the Township should support the efforts of property owners to have the State law. He also recommended that special Township police officers be appointed during hunting season to help enforce the present law.

Mayor Hurford emphasized at the close of the oft-heated debate that the session had been a "most amicable" one and a "public hearing." The Committee will weigh and consider the suggestions offered before it takes action. He said that a new ordinance is needed in the rapidly-expanding municipality, a public hearing will first be held

LICENSES REVOKED

Citizen's Complaint Lauded.—"With more people who are violating the law, we can't call the police," Township Magistrate Louis R. Gerber observed Tuesday evening after pronouncing citizen's complaint against Joseph DiVincenzo, Mt. Lucas Road. The complaint, against Walter Kochis, 20, of State Road, for driving recklessly, was filed by Mr. Gerber, a home, resulted in an indefinite license revocation and a fine of $5 court costs for the defendant, who pleaded guilty.

"I was burning rubber and driving like mad up and down Mt. Lucas a week ago Sunday," the complainant asserted. "In Township Court, every time he passed me, I figured it was about time for me to stop him before he killed himself or someone else. So I called the police. And there are some other offenders I'm going to get to."

In imposing the penalty, Magistrate Gerber told Mr. Kochis, "You got a terrible record." He cited careless driving and speeding convictions that led to a 30-day revocation in 1950 similar to this one that ended in a two-month revocation.

Of unusual interest Tuesday, a second citizen's complaint was entered against a driver by Sheriff Slein, 149 Township Road. He had cited Richard Koenigsmund, 19, University Place, for driving down the wrong side of Walnut Lane, a residential street. Young Koenigsmund was prepared to admit his guilt, but Mr. Slein asked the magistrate to forget it. "I forgot," noted that he had talked at length with the defendant and his parents and felt certain "he'll be more cautious in the future."

W. J. McVeigh, 22, of 27 Lytle Street, who told Patrolman Fred Porter he almost ran another car off State Road because he was so tired, was fined $10 and had his Army physical exams and wasn't passing the vehicle properly, received a 30-day license revocation and a $5 court charge for recklessness. "I just don't have time to think things over," Magistrate Gerber said. "An auto is more dangerous than a tank sometimes. You failed to get into the Army, so you came close to killing people on the highway instead."

BOROUGH COURT ACTION
Three Drivers Fined. Magistrate Theodore T. Tamm Jr. levied penalties totaling $15 in Borough Traffic Court this week. Vernon S. Johnson, Jr., 21, of Olden Lane was given an adjournment allowing him to go on a tour of the country. He was charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

Peter Gillette, 37, of 10 Berrien Court was fined $30 for two tickets. Carmen Fassina of 230 Moore Street paid a $15 fine after pleading guilty to driving while passing through a "stop" sign. Ronald W. Van Note, 23, of 2273 Morrison Avenue, Hightstown, paid a penalty of $30 for reckless driving.

IM THE DOG OF THE WEEK—WANT ME? I may not have a name, but I'm a good-looking—brown and black and white—and I'm especially friendly with youngsters. The gent in the picture with me, Walter S. Voorhees, has been making me meals, says I'm an expert at the game, and I'm a good dog. I feel more secure than mixed because I need a home badly and, if I don't find one quickly, well—you guessed it. I can be seen at Petville on Princeton Pike, between Nassau and Broad Streets, on Saturday and Sunday, 'till 5 p.m. Saturday and 'till 4 p.m. Sunday. If I happen to be taken, please consider one of my cute friends, all brought here by the Princeton Small Animal Rescue League or Lawrence Township.

GERMAN VIEW OF WORLD WAR II: Keenan Wynn, Lilo Pulver and John Gavin are in the Erich Maria Remarque story, "A Time to Love and a Time to Die," showing at Playhouse through Saturday.

News Of The THEATRES

(A review of "Light Up the Sky," University Players' production running through Saturday, appears on page 10.)

THE PLAYHOUSE

A Time to Love and a Time Dio (July 31-August 2) apparently runs for two hours and 13 minutes in respect of its lengthy title, but such a long time will add to the waste of war isn't necessary. The tale is told long before the two-hour mark—in fact, it's terrible to come to the conclusion, which breathes familiar air all the way through, grows more than a little tedious.

Takes directly from the World War II novel by Erich Maria Remarque, whose "All Quiet on the Western Front" made a stirring movie about World War I some 30 years ago, this latest in a recent rash of love-in-war films fails to pass the war deliverance test, which is the main war story. Perhaps there is too much emphasis on the romance back home and not enough emphasis on the kind of fighting up front. Perhaps Gavins' script, which is not as well suited to the expected starkness of war as good old black and white. Perhaps it's still terribly tough for Americans to believe that some of those Nazis they fought weren't such bad guys after all.

Just as "All Quiet" shot Lew Ayres into stardom so Lew appears destined to launch a military career for young John Gavin, Universal's much-publicized new he-man. Lilo Pulver adds a welcome change-of-face to the U.S. screen, while veterans Jack Mahoney, Don DeFore and Keenan Wynn afford solid performances in support. It's unfortunate that their sparkling work won't add much luster to a somewhat tarnished tale.

Light Up the Sky (August 3-9) gives Paramount a chance to add to its success in the much-publicized World War II epic in succession, whether they want to be fed such a heavy mid-summer movie or not. In this instance, the offering is more than interesting that its predecessor, and, in general, is pretty well-acted (by Frank Sinatra, Tony Curtis, Donald Sinden and a cast of stars) and well directed (by expert Delmer Daves). For the record, it's also 10 minutes shorter than "A Time to Love and a Time to Die."

Once again, the subject matter is love-in-war, only this time the battle scenes contribute a great deal to the overall picture quality. Set in the South Pacific, the Maritimo Alps and the Riviera, "Kings" chronicles the misfortunes of a hard-bitten American pilot (Sinatra) who doesn't like his ride and elegant replacement (Curtis). Their relationship is hardly enhanced when Sinatra's Riviera girl friend (Miss Wood, of course) falls in love with Curtis' Maritimo girl friend, asking the young lady to marry him. When Curtis subsequently changes his mind about the romance, he returns to the U.S. to kill the job for him, permitting the film's hero to be a real hero instead of real coward.

As might be guessed, the story —other than the beginning from the outset—grows downright unsatisfactory toward the end. Miss Wood gains a measure of happiness, Sinatra gains understanding. —Continued on Page 6 ing—the audience howls out. It's probably the only course Hollywood could take, however, since Miss Wood reveals she is hell-bent to please Jerry Lewis and can't take a chance on being herself. Ah well, this IS summer-time and "Kings" rates as pretty fair summer fare.

LAURENCE DRIVE-IN
Rock-a-Bye Baby (July 31-Aug. 1) threatens to win no special awards on extra amount of reviews' stars, though it is certain to please all Jerry Lewis fans. Who else but Lewis can manage in number bloopers, many in number bloopers. Written especially for Jerry, production cost as star of his pictures, only the Vianetts. Vianetts Technicolor picture involves an inept, shy, small-town bachelor and TV reprimand who for years has been in love with a small-town girl (Marilyn Maxwell) now a glamorous Hollywood star. Abby assisted by Bacalloni, Reginald Gardner and Hens Conried, Jerry Lewis is in a batch of comedy routines, some bordering on the slapstick, some of the more subtle mixtures still others a bit too familiar.

A showstopper is the latest from Lewis: "Badman's Country," a routine western with action plenty for lovers of cowboy sangas. The good guys are very good, the bad guys are terrible and there're a host of rough-and-tumble scenes before virtuous emperors triumphant. Buster Crabbe plays Wyatt Earp, Gregory Walcott plays the Marshal and Malcolm Atterbury plays Buffalo Bill, but the biggest hero of all is one Pat Garrel, rendered by Lewis. Montgomery, and the No. 1 villain is just plain Cassidy, accomplished with real menace by Neville Brand.

Howard, Jackson, Fawcett, Gun Alive and Son of Dr. Jekyll (August 2 only) form a Saturday night triumvirate for motion picture diehards that includes something for every taste. There's an Afternoon film with the same name stars (Ava Gardner and Stewart Granger), a Western with the most versatile actress around (Audrey Dalton); (Gene Ford); and a midnight horror show. The movies aren't new ones, but they represent a good mix for those in the market for a long, long evening. "Fastest Gun Alive" is the best bet—then on the menu—a much better-than-average boots-and-saddles story with several different twists.

Vertigo (starts Aug. 3) is described in Webster's dictionary as "a dizzy, confused condition of mind in which all things seem to be whirling around; mental bewilderment and confusion." In excellent Vista-Vision and Technicolor (San Francisco is the site), "Vertigo," a Hitchcock's-doodled-of-a film has all these elements—plus

IT'S NEW To Us

DRINK THE DAISIES

Take One Bottle of Rum . . . Wine and Game has no objection to people who follow gin with tonic right into a double glass, but the shop on 188 Nassau says that summer is a good time to experiment with drinks, and with this artistic aim, they have prepared this unique mixture of summer cooler recipes.

Just one general principle—we have never had the bartender mix up a drink for us, and the "Daisy" You squeeze half a lime and drop it in a shake with finely cracked ice. Add 1 1/4 ounces of either rum, applejack, Calvados rum, or brandy. Add 1/2 ounce grenadine. Shake, pour into an old-fashioned glass and garnish with a daisy. Please Don't Eat the Daisies.

Twenty other recipes follow this one, in a pleasantly abandoned manner. Try a cognac snifter on American bitters, or a "hot mouth and carbonated water" or a brandy float, in which the brandy floes, like a lazy summer sunbeam, on top of the carbonated water.

Wine and Game now carries lines, by the way. Fresh ones, 12¢.

For warm weather dining, the wine steward recommends Stichel vine rose, medium dry, 1955, $2.55 or a 1952 Italian rose, light and dry, for 95¢. In white wines there's "Cordice" Grand on the white burgundy Pouilly-Fuisse Latour from the importer Frederick Wildman. Leave the daisy out of this one.

"Pictures at an Exhibition." For music lovers, there is a display of paintings in a room which is being prepared for a Miss New Jersey Chambers Street, where there has an exhibition of oils by young Wayne Graybill, erstwhile resident of Westgate, now resident in New Hope.

The paintings are for sale, as well as exhibition, and they come as a result of the art-collecting hobby of the Miss New Jersey manager. He plans to give one-man shows as a regular feature of life

For Soaked Hostesses

"The Compleat Martini Cook Book" is three parts insane delight and one part very good sense. We suggest you take it straight.

The book consists of recipes just for hostesses who may have had too many. There are five chapters, "After Two Martinis," up to "After Six Martinis," and from there, you're on your own.

For the hostess who is up in the type gets a lot bigger because cooks may have more trouble figuring things out. Toward the end are recipes which have to be cut with a sharp knife and the final chapter, "The Morning After," consists of recipes all together and tersely recommends milk and orange juice, a tubish bath and "soul searching."

We'll bid the recipe for "Under the Table d'hot" and the "Errats" slip in front of the book which inserts various forgotten receipts like "In line 10, page 28, remove spoon after stirring chowder." Illustrations areiberated.

Where to buy it? Princeton Gourmet, of course.

In the music shop, and Mr. Graybill is the first choice.

Some eight or ten works are represented in the current show. Mr. Graybill does well with small street scenes and groups like the "Three Cossacks" with white hats. He isn't quite so successful with human faces, although he has an arresting man's head in the window of the shop, and a quietly penitent man.

He is self-taught, painting full time, and extremely earnest about his work. He hopes you will like, and buy, but he will continue to paint anyhow.

Wok! A wok is—but of course you know what you may not know is that you can buy them now at Princeton Gourmet for $6.95.

For the unenlightened, let's us explain that a wok is a heavy, shallow pan, round or square, how it's the all-purpose pan in the Chinese cook's kitchen. It's 14 inches in diameter and shaped like a bowl, having a flat bottom. Cook vegetables in it the way the Chinese do, quickly in a tiny bit of oil. The steep sides of the wok prevent spattering.

With this you may have a huge ladle, wooden handled, for $1.25, presumably hand-made in Hong Kong. Look! It is a wooden ladle! We also have a book of Chinese recipes, chopsticks, a package of something called bean threads that look like glass, but are really infinitely fine shreds of green beans, and the usual water chestnuts and bamboo sprouts. Rice sticks and rice noodles go with the wok. (They are useful for people on low-starch diets, too.)

MUSIC In Princeton

BAND CONCERT FRIDAY

Harrison Work is Featured. When the Princeton Community Band presents another summer concert on Friday, the featured event will be work by John Harrison, one of Princeton's most promising young musicians. The piece by the Harvard University junior is entitled "Three Choral Preludes for Brass."

The band concert will be held at 7:30 P.M. on the green in front of Nassau Hall on the University campus. The band's next performance after this Friday will be held August 22.

The "Three Choral Preludes" is Harrison's first musical composition. He has had quite extensive acquaintance with the piano almost since the time he learned to walk. In 1951, he and his brother, Tom, had formed the "Edgar Five," a small combo for dance music and jazz.

Studied Under Harasym. During his first year at Princeton, he lived at 12 Edgewell Street, took up the viola under Nicholas Harasym and the trumpet under the Princeton Symphony Orchestra. In his junior year, he won the Broadcast Music Inc. prize for his composition, "Trumpet Capriccio."

Harrison's most recent success has been with the Bach Society at Harvard. After two years as a violist, he has now switched to the trombone when necessary; he has been selected to conduct the 24-piece chamber music group through its remaining year in his undergraduate career. Last year, he also played with the Cambridge String Quartet.

The "Three Choral Preludes," which Harrison just completed July 12, is based on the classical Heut ist, O Mensch, ein grosser Tag, heut ist, O Mensch, ein grosser Tag (Today is, O man, a great day). The instrumentation for the composition is six trumpets, four trombones, two harmonicas, two French horns and two tubas.

The Harrison band, which plays about 10 minutes, was described by band conductor Bruce McKinney as "the most unusual work for the hand to date because of its modern, discordant harmonies."

nies." It will come second in a program of 12 pieces. Selections will include trumpeters George Hunt and Gerry Chupik, and trombonists Tad Cantrell and Jack Orton. The initial number on the program will be the introduction to Act III of Richard Wagner's opera "Lohengrin." Other selections will be "Pavane" and "Danse des Tompions," "Dame et Grelot," Englebert Humperdinck's "Overture in F," Etienne-Henri Monod's "Favavne" from American Symphonies, No. 1, Morton Gould's "Bugler Holiday," Leroy Anderson's "Apollo March," Anton Bruckner's or table standard, for beach houses, porches, or what have you.

The candle emerges slowly as it is unfastened, up by a spring or something. You have to buy special candles for it. Prices are $9.95 for table model, $10.95 for wall.

To give you even more light, Gourmet has a black jointed stick with a kerosene lamp on one end and a candle on the other. Stick it in the ground, adjusting height by taking out a joint or two, and light the flare. You may have a bigger and brighter light just by putting the candle on the stick.

For outdoor dining and wining, or just lemonading, you'll like the little straw donkey, about five inches high with a straw hat, holds six glasses. He's about two and a half feet long, $24.95 retail, with pleasantly lapping ears and a patient manner.

Coolers for this summer are made to look like bandannas. Gourmet has a red bandanna half-cylinder cooler, a four-gallon cooler to match and a convenient little beach grill, $2.95.

Keep Zorro away from these! Socko's has a leather hamper, four short ones, two for babies, for $5.45. The traditional protective cup at the base of a fencing stick has been turned around so that the cup is away from your hand and ready to hold flaming brandy.

Let's Play Dolls. Stuff and Non-sense, 10 Moore, obliges all young mothers with a very special new doll from West Germany. These are soft-bodied, come in a wide variety of clothes, and are for cuddling with realistic plastic faces that have the look of real children. Hair, is, rent, ton, and firmly packed.

The dolls are about 10 inches long, dressed in kid undergarments that can be taken off and put on. There is a brother with trousers and blouse, a little boy, and a girl or two. The family encompasses a blond, a brunet and a redhead.

The Dolly Hostess and Bath Closet hold everything one needs for the unexpected overnight guest. In the Hostess Closet there are cards and checkers, napkins

"Courting Time" and "My Romance." Television audiences have seen him on "Omnibus," "Kraft Theatre," "Studio One," and "Robert Montgomery Presents."

The part of Beth Livingstone will be taken by Gail Gentile who has had a number of parts in many of the country's night clubs, among them New York's "Versailles" and Chicago's "Empire Room." The new play will be directed by Michael Martin. Luisa Ollveras, Mabena Vargas, Alex Alexander, Ben Stone, Linda King and Hope Sannerdy.

Mr. Hart has assumed other Merman roles in previous years including the leads in the national company of "Annie Get Your Gun" and the London production of "Candide." Merman has also sung and danced in "Courting Time" opposite Joe E. Brown, "Seven Lively Arts," "Very Warm for May," "The Mikado" and "Higher and Higher." The current show at the Music Circus is "Auntie Mame," starring Sylvie Simon, which will give its final performance this Sunday.

UNIVERSITY PLAYERS

Sky Unlighted. In a last-minute substitution, the University Players will present "Sky Unlighted," a new "Great" Schubert, with Miss Hart's "Light Up the Sky," a 1948 Broadway production.

The choice was not fortunate, since Mr. Hart's play depicts the Boston opening of a drama (finally identified as "The Legend of the White Horse") as a household production. Despite all the clichés about the stage, fraternity spread through the printed and spoken word, and the audience believed in what "Light Up the Sky" had to say—and impossible to accept the material as pure farce because it makes his own ideas for so seriously.

After landing the play to the skies and reiterating their faith in the new characters until the physiognomy of the cast became all he believed is his work following an opening night failure. The author, disillusioned, is determined to stick on a play in New York which was dragged back by a philistine producer at the orders of the producer. They have seen the local reviews, which are good despite the play's obscure aspects, and plan to continue.

Overlooking the comedy's tenuous plot, several of the actors shine in their roles, among them Joseph Bird, Francine Toll and Claire Frontenac. Miss Frontenac, who will be remembered from "The Matchmaker" and "The Burnt Flower Bed," portrays the leading lady with vitality and charm. When she decides to lose her voice to get back to the producer, her true dramatic flair comes into full force and her relationship with her Wall Street employer is perfectly set.

Reviews Advised.

Mr. Bird, as the director, who declaims "I could cry" whenever a situation becomes in the least emotional, gives a polished performance and pulls the maximum from every actress. He also plays the gum-chewing producer's wife to the hilt and is completely at home in his "cozumelante" role. Miss Hart's scenes do not do as well as Miss Toll's foil, the actress' mother, who knows her way around and has come out on top of the heap after many years of a difficult show business. She lacks the lustre and verve essential to the part.

The part of the producer, played by Mario Siletti, is obviously a plum since the production, but Mr. Siletti throws away all his best quips away by speaking too fast and concentrating too much

Rein, Pain, Gain!

Shaking off a brief shower that threatened to postpone their annual "donkey baseball" second game, the members of the lights at Princeton High School last Thursday evening—and it was quite a performance, in spite of the weather delay. Almost everyone had a fine time, enjoying the spectacle that finally resulted in a Lions round robin of 12 to 10 for the Police Youth Program of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, Local 130.

To judge the much-appreciated contribution, police of the Borough and Township forces defeated a determined team of Lions, 52 to 41, in a little-known unusual game. Assistant Borough Patrolman Douglas Watson won the game in the last minute, after the loss of a couple of donkeys. He got off his over-sized mount, picked the smallest available donkey and carried the animal across the baseline for the tie-breaking score—an odd but effective interpretation of a rule that states a run counts only if a donkey stays on the field with player.

The one competitor who found the struggle somewhat less than rewarding was John A. Arnett, 25, of Legion Street, who damaged a number of ligaments when the socket joint of one of his arms was pinched in the baseline during a month's healing period, the spirited Lion asked himself:

"Does it sound any better to say 'I fell off a donkey' than 'I ran into a door'?"

on his accent as a denizen of "The Great White Way." His thin, black mustache and nervous mannerisms, however, give a good picture of the producer who is determined to make his name and reputation are at stake on the outcome of an offshore show.

Peter Sloan plays the innocent playboy, embellishing the first stage venture in a low-keyed, quiet way but fails to make the change at the end of the third act to a bold and forceful manner of the strong man in a convincing manner. As the actress' secretary, Kathy Kelly has a creditable job, as does Mrs. Tammie, the author who knows the foibles and foibles of his co-workers only too well.

Jim Ambrosio, who gives the production a fast pace and good timing, also plays the part of a Shriner on convention in a wondrously good way. The costumes, designed by Dennis Williams, are excellent and particular credit should be given the toward production of Mr. Bird and Miss Toll's opening night costume, which can only be described as a "get-up." The setting by Jerry Rainey evokes the atmosphere of the Ritz-Carlton, if not the actual decor.

Hanpered by a weak play,

the Players do a good job.

But in the current offering,

Princeton looks forward to seeing them in future productions which will allow them to put their talents to better use.

PLAYERS TO DO WILLIAMS
Three One-Actors Vary. The University Players will present three one-act plays by Tennessee Williams following this week's production of Merv Hart's "Light Up The Sky." Reservations may be made at the Princeton Hotel, 3539. Dates are next Tuesday through Saturday, August 9.

"Auto-De-Fé" deals with the miseries of a man who, with his mother and her artist son, a familiar Williams' theme recalled particularly from "The Glass Menagerie." The scene offers a sharp contrast in portraying a Boston lady who grows a wail of pettiness to isolate herself from the world, only to have her dreams destroyed by a lotion salesman.

Its title is "The Case of the Crushed Petticoat" (a combination of the Glass Menagerie and "The Rose Tattoo"). The third is "Portrait of a Madonna," which illustrates another Williams' thesis, man's difficulty in separating reality and illusion.

Ike's Popularity Up

In spite of the repercussions of the Adams-Goldfine case and the landing of U. S. Marine in Lehigh, President Eisenhower is somewhat more popular with New Jersey voters today than he was six weeks ago according to figures compiled by the New Jersey Poll. 68 percent of voters questioned approved of the way the "Mr. of the White House" was handling his job. Twenty-seven percent of the 1,280 New Jerseyans questioned said they disapproved of President Eisenhower's policies while five percent expressed no opinion. Six weeks ago, New Jersey Poll findings reported that 63 percent of those questioned approved; 30 percent were disapproving, 27 percent; no opinion, 10 percent. Thus the Eisenhower popularity index has registered five points higher since June 19.

Over the years, the poll has found that the popularity of the President in office has some bearing on the off-year Congressional elections. This year, should President Eisenhower's popularity continue to rise, the New Jersey should be held. On the other hand, Government will almost certainly give Democratic candidates running for the U. S. Senate and Congressional seats a better chance to win.

given on each of 60 stops will be a complete dramatic production.

"Aida" and "The Night Visitors" the semi-operas widely seen on television as produced by the school. Five boys will rotate in the title role, with four adult soloists. The cast includes Marie Bruce and Louis Toro of Westminster Choir College, assisting.

The boys will travel in the "Schools on Wheels" a custom-built motor coach which includes a pull-down desk at each seat for school work. A piano and kitchenette are among the other facilities. Dr. Donald Bryant, music director of the school, will be in charge.

The Columbus Boy's Club Camp at Shady Brook-Durham will bring a six-week session in a close on August 10. Closing events will include a concert with orchestra at the Fred Waring Music World. The camp property and its encampment was developed this summer. Paul Ziegler is director of the camp staff, with Mr. Bryant as music director; Robert Illopy, economist; Mrs. T. R. Bassett, dietitian, and Miss Phyllis Gulick, secretary.

OUT ON A LIMB: By way of emphasizing the out-on-a-limb nature of President Eisenhower's stately bandwagon decision, Town Topics asked Question of the Week. Maestro Maestro urged the cameraman by pointing out on a high limb. Mr. Maestro endorses the President's move wholeheartedly, and thinks the United States should take similar action to protect Iraq. (Photo by Chachowski)

Question of the Week

QUESTION: Do you think the United States should continue to "go it alone" in Lebanon?

Location: Palmer Square and around town.

Richard Lynch, Blawenburg, student at Westminster Choir College: As far as I know, the American troops are there on request. Unless something bigger is offered by the UN, I would say they should stay there — as long as on request.

Richard Toff, 749 Puritan Avenue, Trenton, salesman: No, I don't think the U.S. should be the goat for the entire world. I feel positively that other people should help out in the situation.

Mrs. John F. Bernard, 164 Grove Avenue, Elizabeth: Yes, I do. If we don't take a stand somewhere and say, "This is it," the Communists will continue to expand and take over the entire world.

Mr. John T. Clough, 222 Hamilton Avenue, music and choir teacher: Yes, I certainly do. I think Eisenhower was absolutely right to send troops because he did not want any possibility of a landing in the United Nations on such matters. The UN takes so long to reach a decision in these situations because of Russia's power to keep the decision in mid-air. If and when they did reach some sort of a decision, any action would be long past due and it would probably be futile for UN troops to go to Lebanon and take any kind of stand.

Mrs. John F. Delaney, 86 Jefferson Road, executive at Bamberg's: I believe the President was wise in his decision in sending troops to Lebanon, and I think they should stay there until a competent force from the UN comes in and Lebanon is able to take care of itself. After all, we were just lucky enough to get in there before the Russians — and they were on the verge of setting up a government there, like the ones in Hungary and Poland.

Jose Maestre, Hopewell, group leader in publications section at ASCOP: Yes — we should not only "go it alone" in Lebanon, but we should not let Iraq go down

Dangerous Do-It-Yourself

As Town Topics prepared Question of the Week (this page for this column), late plans for a proposed summit conference were still being formulated, tensions were still being tested in the Middle East and U.S. troops were being digested along the Lebanon. Question was still a timely one with the paper's press deadline drawing near, though it might well be put off, though it might be off the page's appearance, what with the international situation changing hourly.

In collecting answers for this week's Question, Town Topics' inquiring reporter found that the great majority of interviewees endorse President Eisenhower's decision to land troops in Lebanon and feel that the United States should "go it alone" if necessary — even though it appears to be a mighty dangerous do-it-yourself program. Dominant sentiment perhaps was summed up by John T. Clough, 222 Hodge Road, former ambassador to Russia who informed the press: "Under the prevailing circumstances, I do not see that we could have acted otherwise."

the drain. We should see that Iraq is turned over to Hussein.

Lester L. Quirk, Pennington merchandising adviser for the Princeton University Store: President Eisenhower made his course clear. Most people I know agree that the United States troops already have been exposed, there is no reason to back out. Yes, the United States should "go it alone" if necessary.

If Ogden Nash Drove Down Nassau Street
To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

Nothing gives me a slow burn
As much as the people in big-finned cars with eight headlights
That seem to be looking for a signal for a turn;
Except the lady who signals for a left turn and then turns right,
Preferably through a red light.

As to the elderly pedestrian,
Does he ever look both ways, as even kindergarten children do,
Is he ever question,
Of course,
He's expecting a horse.

Pretty girls in station wagons are all right going straight
Down Nassau Street, except they're always late
And can't possibly stop at a red light
Except to have a long chat with a friend, knit a sweater, write a letter, or fix their complexion.

The big executive who gets out to buy a paper, leaving his rear wheels a yard from the curb and really congesting the five
Is less than serene,
Look out for young mothers,
They're worse than the others.

The sight of a wife driving her husband to work is one our faith to restore with Except after he gets out at the corner is when he remembers to give her a message for the plumber and $10 to go to the
A&P store with.

Who double-parks
Should be fed to sharks.

How to Cut Traffic Deaths,

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The following quotation from the New York Times of July 17 might be of some help in our present concern about death at automobile accidents.

"100th Connecticut Car Death"

"Hartford, July 16—Connecticut counted its 100th automobile fatality for 1957 today, when Peter Gaudet, 21, of New Haven, died after being hit by a car in a head-on collision with another car in a wooded area of New Haven."

"A 33 percent reduction in automobile fatalities in these years (from 195 to 100) goes to show that effective enforcement of a driving license is an effective means of controlling speeding, and the number of deaths."

AUCTION FOR CHILDREN

Will Use Coupons for Cash. A "Kids Kash Auction" will be held Saturday at the Princeton Shopping Center, starting for bicycles, radio, equipment, etc. Prizes and games will begin promptly at 2 p.m.

Almost every store at the shopping center gives sales receipts which can be exchanged for "Kids Kash" coupons at the Exchange Center. Frank Ford will auction off more than 75 items to the highest bidders using these special coupons.

The Exchange Center is open Thursday and Friday evenings and on Saturday from 10 a.m. until the time of the auction when it will close. A previous "Kids Kash Auction" was held on June 22.

ART CLASSES OFFERED

Directed by Mrs. Bonotto. Men with an urge to express themselves in painting are invited to take advantage of a new series of advanced and beginners adult art classes offered by the Princeton YMCA. The classes will be held Wednesday evenings from 8 to 10 beginning the next week at the Witherspoon YMCA, 120 Witherspoon Street.

According to the interest and experience of the individual students, the art training will include figure, still life and landscape work. Students paint from life models. After the first session of the class, while outdoor classes have done landscape work at such places as the old mill at Kingston, Walker-Gordon pond, Princeton and the Quaker Meeting House.

Landscape studies are done during special morning classes. Applications for enrollment in the new series of art classes can be made at the Witherspoon YMCA.

ASCOP GETS CONTRACTS

To Aid in Space Race. Already considered one of the world's most important research centers, Princeton also is becoming one of the nation's key centers for development of new electronic equipment vital to the scientific and military progress of the United States. Top scientist and engineer of the Applied Science Corporation of Princeton (ASCOP) through their work on statistical planning, have entered the race for missile and space supremacy.

ASCOP's development program—offering a more efficient way to handle large amounts of information on the performance of missile and space vehicles—has received the backing of three of the nation's leading defense agencies. Contracts totaling $150,000 have been awarded to the Princeton corporation by the Army Ballistic Missile Agency (ABMA), Huntsville, Ala.; the Army Research and Development Center, White Sands, N. M., and the Air Development Center, Holloman Air Force Base, N. M. (AFMA) is the unit which launched the United States' first earth satellite, Explorer I.

In simple, non-technical terms, telemetering is described by ASCOP as a way of getting information from an airborne missile, plane or satellite to the ground and presenting the information in a usable form. Measurements of temperatures, strains, stresses and vibrations are some of the thousands of pieces of information which are telemetered continuously during a missile's flight.

Missile men, who are responsible for this country's advance in space, require this information to make a missile workable and decisions. The more information they receive in ready-to-use form, the faster they can develop better missiles, satellites and space exploration vehicles. Yet this constantly increasing demand for more and better telemetry must be accomplished without overloading missiles and space vehicles with electronic equipment.

The Answer was "YES," ASCOP. The 12 years of experience in developing and manufacturing telemetering equipment for missiles and aircraft, began last year to investigate solutions to this problem. The company's engineering planning department, headed by Arthur Westneat, BIG THREE BEHIND ASCOP'S LATEST ACHIEVEMENTS: Applied Science Corporation of Princeton (ASCOP) engineers, responsible for a program that has resulted in three military contracts (see story, this page), discuss a telemetering development problem at the company's Princeton Junction laboratories. From left: Marcus Lewinstein, senior engineer and mathematician; Arthur Westneat, manager of the engineering planning department, and Dr. Alfred Ratz, assistant department manager.

Rocky Hill Road, Franklin Township, and Dr. Alfred G. Ratz of Barnett Road, Nassau Estates, Lawrence Township, settled on an approach based on statistical mathematics.

This approach was chosen because it promised efficient handling of high frequency data. These occurrences are caused when a missile, driven by a thundering rocket engine, hurtles through a series of hyperbolic speeds. Vibration parts of the missile vibrate hundreds of times each second. These vibrations create forces about which designers must know.

The telemetering of high frequency information now consumes a large share of equipment and analysis time. ASCOP engineers asked the question: Can this information be analyzed statistically in the missile and some more ready-to-use results be extracted? The answer, based on research by ASCOP's mathematician, Marcus Lewinstein and Professor Enoch Durbin of Forrestal Laboratories, was "YES." Initial research also showed that it would be practical to build light and tiny (several ounces, 1 cubic inch) equipment to do the job.

At ASCOP, based in Princeton, the engineering planning department produced a preliminary engineering model of a statistical telemetering device. Then the results of the ASCOP program were presented to military missile agencies. These agencies felt the ASCOP program was so advantageous that they decided to go no further in research and development of prototype models. One of the contracts also supports research for some larger ground based equipment for the statistical analysis of data.

MERCER IS SELECTED

As Test for Land Promotion. Mercer County has been selected to test site reviews and real estate interchanges, clearinghouse for real estate, for a concentrated program of industrial land promotion. Maurice H. Hageman, Hightstown, developer, has been appointed the firm's representative in this area.

Previews, Inc., made an intensive study of the industrial potential in this area, according to Freeholder Frank J. Black, director of the Mercer County Industrial Commission. Efforts will be made to convert the land, now principally farm land, but which have ready access to transportation facilities and other prerequisites to successful manufacturing operations.

Mr. Black said he felt the test program would be "beneficial to

Employment Level Rises

Evidence that the recession may be levelling off was to be found in the latest employment figures by the State Department of Labor and Industry. Commissioner Carl Holderman was at June employment in New Jersey's non-manufacturing industries had increased by 21,300 jobs.

Although 90 percent of this gain could be attributed to seasonal factors such as student employment, an encouraging sign was that small gains were also registered by many of the durable goods industries which have been declining steadily since August 1952. In spite of a gain of 1,200 jobs in durable industries, the June level of 1,872,000 employed in New Jersey was still 109,000 less than for June 1952.

In heavily industrialized Mercer County, employment increased by 200 in June to a total of 95,800. There was a gain of 700 jobs in the durable goods industries, the upturn in this industry group since last November. The gain was counterbalanced, however, by a dip of 100 in non-durable goods industries and of 400 in non-manufacturing industries.

Mercer County's continuing economic expansion." Previews, Inc., operates through 12 offices in the United States, England and France and has 20,000 cooperative clients who handle $75,000,000 in property annually.

Mr. Hageman has been active in promoting industrial land in this area. Among his recent successes was the 95-acre tract in East Windsor Township, upon which McGraw-Hill Book Company is constructing its new 215,000 square foot distribution center.

DEVELOPMENT PROGRESSES

Three Basic Models Offered. Twelve early sales have already been made in the Princeton Colonial Park, a new development of 135 custom-built homes under construction in Princeton Junction. Werner-Ziff, Inc., is the builder and developer of the tract.

Prices for the new homes start at $16,800. Three basic models are offered—all to be constructed on minimum 125 x 200 feet lots. All houses are equipped with General Electric gas-fired hot air heat and will be adaptable for future air conditioning.

The Lafayette, a ranch-type dwelling, has three bedrooms, a 22-foot living room, full-size dining room, kitchen with dinette ton has known in recent years) are a real sign of leading from weakness.

The most important conversion point centers around Ippolito, a 6-2, 195-lb. junior whose sheer strength and speed make him a threat to the middle. An all-around athlete, he was credited with four home runs (and played four different positions) on the baseball team last spring.

If Tilley can replace Jack Sapoch as the regular quarterback—and he has already been assigned Sapoch's number 29—Ippolito will become the best threat to the middle. An all-around athlete, he was credited with four home runs (and played four different positions) on the baseball team last spring.

FOOTBALL OUTLOOK—III

(This is the third of a series of four articles on Princeton's prospects for the 1958 football season.)

A Look at the Lineup. When a coach makes mention of strength, he is leading from strength or weakness? In Princeton's case, as the 1958 football season news comes in, the coach's criteria might be described in this paradoxical statement: He's leading from weakness with strength.

That is to say, the Tigers have some very good three-man positions (quarterback, guard and tackle) as a result of graduation, and they are creating a big hole at a fourth by switching wingback Warwick Ippolito to the quarterback's slot. That's the weakness the kind inevitably created by graduation—but the players being switched to fill the gaps are good enough so that the moves will eventually make Princeton stronger.

The basic difficulty involved in personnel juggling, of course, that in the Big League, is to do one on paper before fall drills begin. Elsewhere (and once upon a time in Princeton), it could be accomplished in 20 days of spring practice.

When they report for the first session at Blairstown on Labor Day, no less than 38 percent of the players currently listed might be up in the Princeton squad will be assigned to positions other than those they were playing at the end of last season. Actually, that is not as wholesale a change as it sounds. In a number of cases, right guards will be left guards, and left tackles become right tackles. The essential point, on offense, will vary, of course, but it's nothing compared to the conversion of a fullback to tailback, or end to tackle. Switches like this (which Princeton has) are difficult to make. With the regular starters out, the need for additional personnel changes could develop at Blairstown, and certain players currently assigned to starting positions may lose out to others in the spring fast. However, as of mid-summer, this is the run-down on the 1958 lineup: 11 starters and the two limited players who can earn. Eddie—Jim Stansbury, 6-2, 185, and Ed Kostelnik, 6-0, 195, are unlikely to be deposited as starters, even by some better-than-average reserves. Both are valuable in their strong in defensive ability. The only senior among the top six ends is Ed Bob Shepardson, will split Stansbury's solidly-built likes with 6-0, 195, and on the side of the line. Behind Kostelnik are two more juniors, Lynn Osenreider (6-3, 195) and Ron Hillegeist (6-2, 195). With a couple of sophomores also available, the end squad has more depth than any other position on the team.

Tackles—Gene Forcione (6-3, 215) and Bob Schultz (6-2, 195) are the probable starters. The former, a senior, missed a good deal of action last year with injuries but has been working hard to rejoin the Tiger line if he remains whole this season. Schultz showed steady progress in 1957 as a sophomore, and has not yet hit his full potential. He will be supported from senior Charlie Krick, a 205-lb. guard last season, and junior Gordon Batcheller, 187-lb. reserve a year ago. Spelling Forcione and Schultz are senior Krick and George Johnston, a pair of 210-lb. seniors. There is an all too visible lack of experience at this position, and the injuries to other Forcione or Schultz creating serious problems. If the Tigers have trouble at the vital tackle slots, the whole line may develop more slowly than a team defending its championship can afford.

LOU DIMEGLIO

Sannino's Softball Pitcher

Princeton is a community consistently responsible for producing capable softball pitchers each summer, but the Princeton '58 flag chase has developed into a "scorcher" primarily due to two mound importers from New Brunswick, New Jersey—Sannino's and the Princeton A.C. (see photo, page 21) and Lou DiMaggio of Sannino's, scheduled to due for the second time in what could be the campaign's most vital game when the two have proved sensational to date.

DiMaggio, a hefty, 28-year-old hurler with thinning hair, is a parts man with General Motors by trade, and it would seem that his off-duty occupation, since he has shown here that he certainly can make things run smoothly. Called "a ball-player's ball player," the ultimate compliment for a pitcher, DiMaggio is the pitcher of record in 15 of his club's 16 decisions, boasting a 12-3 mark, and is hitting above .500 in the clean-up spot.

As a conclusion to his mound, Sannino's has emerged at the top of the PCSL by sinking—by sinking its stock in DiMaggio's "sinker" ball, that is, "I rely on my 'sinker,'" who throws at about the same speed as several of the loop's leading pitchers, but uses a more erratic opposite batters to swing (and miss) way above the ball than the others can. "I use a change-up and a curve, too, but the 'sinker' is my mainstay."

A product of Catholic Youth Organization softball leagues in New York City, the serious right-hander first started to compete for New Brunswick to Princeton contests last summer. Thanks in large measure to his efforts, Sannino's won the '57 PCSL playoffs. He has had a number of wins, including games this season and, even in defeat, has looked impressive. His losses were by scores of 1-0 (twice) and 3-2 to Brooklyn. Tom (of Nassau Social Club) and Bill Bergen (of Drake's) three of the best in the business.

DiMaggio, who has refused offers to come to play on other circuits, admits a sports philosophy that aids him every time he takes to the hill. "When you play for money, it's a different ball game. You'd lose your drive—your desire to go all-out. To me, it's a lot more fun to play strictly to get to the top of the standings."

Sports In Princeton

to be switched to guard this season. Another junior, 185-lb. Barry Berts, is behind Warwick and Fisher.

Center—It's virtually all open, since the study 195-lb. open-ender, whose play has been so much in winning the Ivy title after the Tigers had gone for five years without a standout player, is the pivot position. Sectional action in the center of the team last fall failed to let the team in this department. Szvetec had occasional problems in snapping the ball to the right back when the competition was keen, but mastered this as he learned. As a line-backer, he was an eye-catcher from the start of the season. Behind him, however, was a lack of depth, which gave ground to a considerable degree because he dominated the job so thoroughly in 1957. Senior Howie Hudson (180) and junior Mike Kline (200) are the next best of ability with Szvetec; if he should be hurt, again the Tiger line might well sag at a vital spot.

Wingbacks—As a matter of policy, the pre-Blairstown depth chart lists senior Ray Emerson, 5-11, 150, ahead of sophomore Mike Iseman, 6-3, 202. As a matter of fact, the two are as thin as can be in football that Iseman will hold down the starting position at wingback when the season opens. Tailback on the same unit, Class of 1958, is also a triple threat and a good blocker, with his running ability his greatest asset. Sophomores John MacMurray and Ross Gormley are competitive Emerson for reserve duty, but like the latter, both are small.

Quarterback—If Ipolito devolves Gene Locks' strategical know-how, Princeton will have an extremely good quarterback. Locks was Ipolito's replacement last fall, and left with a fine working knowledge of single wing football, but his 175-lb. frame isn't equal to the rugged requirements of being a back and line backer for extended periods of time. The two should, however, give Princeton a satisfactory quarterbacking unit in the fall. Juniors Jay Cullen and Ken Murray rank behind them, but sight should not be lost of 193-lb. Jon Haggstrom, last year's freshman captain.

Fulback—Captain Fred Tiley (5-10, 196) leading scorer on the 1957 champions last year with 52 points, will be the work-horse at the number three slot in the single wing attack. Tiley is a major asset as a line-buster, the 4.7 yards he averages being the key to how much he does to keep the defense "honest." Junior Robin Prince (6-2, 204) converted from quarterback to fullback, and sophomore (5-10, 180) will be Tiley's principal replacements, but he and Frank Szvetec are very likely to see more action than any of the other starters.

Tailback—There is good depth here in this sense: sophomore Jackie Sullivan, fourth on the depth chart, will probably develop a better player than Sid Pinch, who, as a converted third-string fullback, was the Tigers' starting tailback three seasons ago. Top tailback assignment is the sophomore who led the Ivy League in scoring last season, fast-stepping Dan Sachs. —Continued on Page 20

NEW JERSEY BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

Report from THE MAYOR

Thursday, Opco House. The regular "Tell it to the Mayor" session will be the weekly open house, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Borough Hall. No appointment is necessary. One of last week's visitors brought along a published article on experimental public housing in Cedartown, Ga.

Scattered Sites. In the first project of its kind, the Federal Housing Administration approved 20 homes in a project scattered on seven different sites. The units were completed in less than four months.

Princeton. Mayor Charles E. Shuster expects that this type of construction will prove most advantageous for small towns, where the traditional row-type or high-rise skyscraper projects are out of place. It may well prove to be the best answer to Princeton's problem of relocation in connection with urban renewal.

Summer Fun. On Friday afternoon, the Mayor was given a guided tour of the playgrounds, playgrounds by C. Edward Christian, the program's director since 1946. Sterling and Marquand Park, we were just in time for a colorful costume contest. The weather was the weather, but was proving its popularity with more than 40 youngsters, under the watchful, friendly eyes of Mrs. Moss and her crafts instructor-helper.

Treasure Hunts. At the high school field, the kids were still buzzing from the treasure hunt, the traditional hunt, a special event in the summer playground schedule of events that looks forward to pipe cleaner art day, talent scout program, picnic, swimming day, dress-up day, etc., while elephant day, a heli contest, and so on. All this is in addition to the usual games and fun that makes this program such a valuable part of the Princeton summer.

At Every Spot. At every spot along the playground, the enthusiasm of the young ones was contagious. The Little Street wading pool was full of excited kids. Harrison Street was temporarily "quiet," while marble-filling can-do, being alternated to winner and loser alike after some major team competition.

On Erdman Avenue, as elsewhere, was waving power of the strange game of ball seemed to be the high points of interest. If life seems just a little dull, just drop by the playgrounds and see some real excitement!

Plenty to Do. The local "Ys" are also active with summer recreation. George Toolie dropped by to check on the progress of the tennis, ball, swimming and other activities. The new police youth program is also demonstrating an active and successful approach to meeting the needs of Princeton youth.

The summer concerts, the other organized and unorganized activities all seem to prove that Princeton is a busy place to be and a good place to spend the summer of 1958. And in the background, the Joint Recreation Committee continues to send the Mayors of Borough and Township the minutes of their meetings, proving that they are hard at work on their important assignment.

NASSAU OIL. Take a look. Favored Nassau Oil climbed into first place the Princeton Junior Baseball League this past weekend. Despite Jim Bowers Construction, but he became increasingly evident that the loop's warming up to a four-team pennant season. After the tournament had wrapped the Patriots' Association-sponsored nine, 11-3, the club bounced back to edge Mattocks Construction's team for its initial win of the season.

In the class, Pete-Mathews battle, the score was tied 3-3 until the last inning, when the visitors finally pushed across the lone run for a belated entry into the league's "win" column. Keith Van Note went all the way on the mound for the triumphant team, while Smokey Black and John Roger shared pitching duties for the losers.

Newly "discovered" Ronald Beeks buried Nassau Oil with a one-sided success over the PBA forces, which had Pete Quigley in the pitchers' box. Control was Beeks' forte and his cause was aided by pitcher Charles Perriher, new catcher and Joe Boyd, who collected two hits apiece. Successive two-baggers by team mates Dave Smyth and Archie Freeman produced the three PBA runs.

The Junior League standings, as of July 28:

	W	L	T	Pts.
Nassau Oil	3	1	0	6
Bowers	2	1	1	14
PBA (Pollee)	1	3	1	11
Mathews	1	2	0	7

Sannino's Nearing Tide. With steady pitcher Lou DiMaggio adding another victory to the total given in our congratulatory column, Sannino's' Pins & Heating lifted its won-loss record to 13-4 Tuesday evening and moved in on the Princeton Community Little League's 13-5 egg crown. Sannino's' cause was aided unexpectedly by Town Topics, which upset second-place Cennerino's, now faced with a do-or-die assignment against the top team this Thursday.

DiMaggio allowed the Sportsmen Club (11-8) an easy high-water mark, his eight, but received 10 hit support and coasted to a 10-3 verdict over a pair of Sportsmen hurlers. Meanwhile, Cennerino's (14-4) tried to place, starting pitcher Mack Brockington with two different pitchers only to lose to the fifth-place newspaper entry, 8-7. Both clubs picked up nine hits apiece, Bill Scully finally earning the win as his teammates rallied for six runs in the last three frames.

Nassau Social Club (14-8), trying to keep in the thick of the loop race, jumped past the Sportsmen into third place—right behind Cennerino's—by dumping Drake's (a 13-5 disappearance 21-1) into the bottom. McCord outdistanced Bill Bergen by the strength of Tim Harris' two-run homer in the third.

All games last Thursday were rained out, so a number of new make-up contests will be necessary before near-final standings can be figured. In the meantime, the anticipated clash between DiMaggio and Brockington, Thursday and should prove quite a dazzler.

PAO LOSES FIRST

Defeat Drags "Pioneers" To Princeton Athletic Club lost its first game in Tri-County League competition this season on Tuesday evening, but with a barrage of makeup contests, the Princetoners still will step up the '58 race by week's end. Definitely scheduled are a postponed meeting Thursday in South Brunswick and the only remaining contest PAC's last regularly slated game at Brokaw Field against Sompyonia on Friday. A makeup doubleheader with Hopewell is to be played at Princeton at 1 p.m. Saturday if it can be arranged.

Princeton (with a 10-1 record and a 2-4 game loop lead) virtually assured itself of second consecutive Tri-County championship last Friday by blanking South Brunswick in a thriller, 1-0. Joe Catell, whose victory was saved by a courageous relief, relieved his mates by Pook, and Bob Fazekas of the losers each pitched one-hitter ball. Cook came in the sixth inning with the bases loaded and one out, then retired the side on a pair of short flies.

Taking full advantage of a lapse in defense behind Fazekas, the winning nine scored the sole run of the close struggle without benefit of its lone safety. Lee Abramson, who liked to stand on second base and continued around to register the important tally when a wild throw by South Brunswick's catcher got by the center fielder, had a hand in it.

On Tuesday, former Princeton High hurler Ivan Riddick made his initial '58 start for PAC and ran into trouble with the 10th and Montgomery Township team, currently mired in fourth place with a 4-9 mark. The triumphant club collected eight hits and took care of Riddick's 10, 1-1, plenty to stymie most PAC challenges.

In view of the league's many rain-delayed contests, Tri-County officials have decided to push back the annual playoffs to an August 11 start instead of a week earlier. The first round will be conducted August 11, 12, and 14, with August 13 and open, as obviously—a rain date. Round No. 2 will follow a week or so later.

COMMUNITY MIXED DOUBLES

Seeded Ted and Anna, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Smoyer, the top-seeded team, and Mr. and Mrs. Marty Katz, second seeded, qualified this week for the finals of the Community Mixed Doubles Tennis Tournament.

BEST IN THE BUSINESS: Controversial Mack Brockington (right), accused of employing an illegal umbrella delivery by some of his baffled opponents (though not by league officials), has pitched a dozen of Cennerino's 14 triumphs in the Princeton Community Softball League this summer. Shown with him are Norman Hinde (left) and shortstop Jim Carter, who aided Brockington's cause often with timely hits—hits that have kept their averagings well above .300. (Town Topics Photo by Hank Chachowski)

Benefit Golf Day Set

Plans for a gala Golf Day— to benefit Princeton Hospital— have been announced by Mrs. David B. Miller, president of the Women's Auxiliary of the hospital. Consisting of an open golf tournament with prizes and a dinner dance with entertainment, the program will take place Saturday, Sept. 13 at Forsgate Country Club, one of the Princeton area's fine courses.

Entries in the tourney will cost $10 apiece, covering a buffet luncheon as well as greens fee, and reservations for the dinner, to be made in advance, will be $10 per person, $25 per couple. Persons wishing entry blanks for the tournament, tickets for the dinner or any other information may call to call Mrs. Kenneth J. Davis, Jr., Mrs. Merritt Rod, chairman of tickets for "Forsgate Day," or Mrs. Miller.

A highlight of the evening, according to Mrs. Miller will be the drawing for a raffle of a fully-equipped, deluxe, 1958 Ford Thunderbird, donated at cost by the Ford Motor Co. By 2,000 chances at $5 each will be available on the car, which retails at approximately $4,700. In addition to the Ford Motor for its cooperation, Mrs. Miller paid thanks to Forster Abel, president of Forsgate Farms, for lending Forsgate Country Club and its facilities for the special event.

In the semifinals, Mr. and Mrs. Smoyer defeated Mr. and Mrs. John Glouchevitch, 6-1, 6-2. Mr. and Mrs. Katz downed Mary Anne Bonham and Ralph Harrison, 6-1, 6-1.

YOUNG ARCHERS SCORE

Do Well In First Try. A team of 17 Police Youth Program archers, competing in its first field archery competition, Sunday at the Buckland Valley Archery Course in Washington's Crossing Park, returned to Princeton with five justly proud winners. Two members of the youthful quintet claimed first-place prizes. George Kalschmidt Jr. of Kingston copping the men's novice class, and Susan Hagedorn, 22 Jefferson Road, taking the girls' bantam class title.

Other winners on the PYP team, Benevolent Association, team sponsored by the Police Youth Program, were: James C. Kington, who finished in the YSB Bantam Division; Tommy Calligan, who wound up third in the boys' bantam class; and Joe Squitter, Mt. Lucas Road, who took fourth construction of the Grand Valley and Spruce Run reservoirs.

Shanks warned of what he feels would be a certain water shortage if voters turned down the referendum. The five points he states:

- The present long-range plan will provide water security for the entire state.
- The only other alternative to authorizing this plan is an expensive, less-adequate program.
- No one is safe from water shortage.

- The present plan can be completed at no cost to taxpayers. Under the present plan, those who use the most water will pay the most. None of the money will come from tax rates.
- The inevitable future growth of the State will require substantially increased surface water supplies.

The $45,850,000 bond issue will come up for the voters' approval in November.

PLAYGROUNDS ACTIVE

Children Kept Busy. Borough Mayor Raymond F. Male has toured the community's playgrounds and wading pools and found the recreation program going at full speed. Among the locales he visited was Marquand Park where a costume show and parade were featured. On the activities of the students, crafts and hobbies, and the children, under the guidance of Mrs. Anna Leverenz, work on such projects as soap carving, pot holding, doll dressing and embroidery. (From the Mayor's report.)

News Of The CHURCHES

APPOINTMENT ANNOUNCED

For Methodist Foundation, The Rev. Philip C. Thomas, who has served for the past three years as chaplain in the Strategic Air Command, has just recently been appointed chaplain of the Princeton Foundation. Methodist students at Princeton University, The foundation meets at the Princeton Methodist Church.

His appointment marks the first time the YWCA Foundation has had a full-time chaplain. Mr. Thomas replaces the Rev. Howard H. Miller, former part-time chaplain, a Methodist student and graduate student at Princeton Theological Seminary.

The New Jersey and Newark Conference of the Methodist Church are launching a new emphasis on student work and Mr. Thomas will devote about one-third of his time to work on campuses in other parts of the state. The new chaplain, who holds a B.D. degree from Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., and an M.A. from Northwestern University, will take up his residence in September at 67 Harriet Drive.

Sins Attend Conference. The Rev. Yancey L. Sims, pastor of the Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church, represented his parish this week at the New Jersey and Newark District Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Church.

Also representing the church was Mr. W. E. Sims, deacon of 10 Lydia Street, and Old D. McGowan of 12 Rose Street. The conference was held at Atlantic Highlands, N. J.

A hobby show has been held at the YMCA in the past few years, where Gregory B. Watson, Douglas Watson and Rita Duley presented prizes. The teams winning the reserve hunt were Arlene Merchant, Katherin Watson, Stewart Bell and Linda Watson. Cynthia and Deborah Snyder, Anderer, presented the awards in the arts and crafts section. In addition, about 300 children participated.

Others were Amy Leverenz, Michael Sweeney, Susan Honore and Peter Weber.

At the Harrison Park playground winners of the hobby show were Charles and Daniel Goede, Alexander D. and David Sweeney, Albert Mason, Carol Wright with Albert Mason's team winning the treasure hunt. Ronald Parker, Donald Truesdale and Anthony Smith won the treasure hunt at the Harrison Park playground and scavenger hunt winners included Gilbert Turner, Robert Decker, Alan Alltieri, Paul Staub and Eliza Rieger.

A hot dog and marshmallow roast, dress-up pageant, arts and crafts and various contests, including a soccer game, badminton, blockhead, checkers, horseshoes, bowling and badminton took place at the Valley Road playground this past week. Among the winners were Cynthia White, Robert Kennedy, Laura Ellen Sweeney, James Phox and Pat White.

Obituaries

Mrs. Mabel Hart Cox of 41 North Main Street, Pennington, died July 29 after a long illness. She was a life-long resident of the town and the area and was a descendant of one of the oldest families there. John Hart, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, was among her ancestors, as was General Nathaniel Greene, who fought in the Revolution.

Widow of Fred C. Cox, she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Alice E. Schmid and a grandson, Stanley T. Schmidt, both of Princeton. The service was held at 6 p.m. in Pennington funeral home, with the Rev. Dr. Kenneth Magner, pastor of the Pennington Presbyterian Church of which she was a member, officiating. Burial was in Pennington Cemetery.

Campbell Dickson, who came to Princeton in 1932 as a member of the football coaching staff headed by Herbert O. "Fritz" Crisler, died July 27 in Wenatchee, Wash., of double pneumonia.

Mr. Dickson, a 1924 graduate of the University of Chicago, played end under Alonzo Stagg. When he joined the Princeton coaching staff with Mr. Crisler as part of a regime that was to write a championship era in football history here, it was as end coach.

After six years at Princeton, he joined the University of Michigan with Mr. Crisler, when the latter became head coach there. Before the 1932 season, Mr. Dickson became Dean of the Princeton women joined the Army for service in the Civil Affairs and Military Government section. He had turned to writing after the war, making his home in Princeton.

His wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Stone Dickson, and a sister, survive. The funeral and interment were in Chicago.

Mrs. Helene Zionsman Guinn, 47 of Alexander Street, died July 23 in Princeton Hospital. She had worked in the administrative office of the auxiliary of Princeton Post, 76, American Legion.

Rev. James J. Quinn, she is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Walter Muellkin of Princeton and Miss Martha Zinsman of New York, and a brother, George Zinsman of Princeton. The service was held at the Kimball Funeral Home, with the Rev. Joseph J. Skelly of the Second Presbyterian Church officiating. Burial was in Princeton Cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

W. J. GUINN wishes to express his deep appreciation to all those who have sent cards, flowers and sympathy through flowers, cards and calls during his recent bereavement.

signed for younger children, are obtained from the State Museum. The library is located in the old cafeteria of the Lawrenceville Elementary School, and is open Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 11:30. Its facilities are open to all residents of Lawrence Township.

TO INSPECT BIKES

Lawrence Riders Altered, The Keystone Automobile Club, in conjunction with the Lawrence Police Department, will have a bicycle department, will conduct a bike inspection for Lawrence's boys and girls this Friday. Brochures and forms will be available for inspection, from 10 a.m. to noon at Lawrence Junior High and 1:30 to 2:30 at Lawrenceville Public School, may be obtained from the playground instructors or the Town Clerk's office.

Estimating there are 21,000 bicycles in use in the United States, Police Commissioner Fred Seabright and Joseph M. Jinnai, playground director, stressed that most of them are ridden by children going to and from school or on errands, short trips or just for fun. They noted that Friday's inspection may help prevent bike accidents, of which there are many each year that 500 passengers are killed and 20,000 others are injured in collisions with autos.
